

Security in the BWC is very important, for many people will be asking questions about who is in the BWC, etc. In the past, telephone calls have been made from anybody and everybodys house, and there has been a lot of gossip about circle business. This has been because of our narrow, unprofessional circle outlook. Now, as we consciously move toward the Party, this laxness must come to a straking halt. Now we are under democratic centralism, which is partly geared toward protecting us from our class enemies.

There is no big plan for security in the District, but a few basic rules should be followed to start with: no phone calls where organizational business is discussed, no alone calls which appear as toll calls on your phone bill. Business should be taken care of in meetings, so that phone calls become almost unnecessary between comrades. Security in this area is particularly important, because of the large number of political groups and the high political atmosphere. When talking to friends or contacts in the class, do not talk about political matters, but regular normal conversation. Do not talk in code to working people, be straight forward and concrete, otherwise they will wonder where you are coming from..

Every unit leaders should give a report about who has a weapon, everyone must have a weapon. Unite leaders should encourage discussion about these matters in the unit and bring back ideas and suggestions. Without good security we cannot build a bolshevik organization, and organization is the only weapon the proletariat has.

LAISON WORK

We have come a long way from a circle to comrades in the BWC, struggling all the way for ideological clarity on the Marxist Leninist line about Party Building. Though it has only been 4-6 months, it seems like a year, and we have shown the way toward Party Building, uniting with groups and individuals. Now that we represent the BWC in this area, everything we do or say will have both local and national importance! Mass line and political and organizational discipline over the communist movement to the correct line and deepen our ties with the masses. In our liaison work with other organizations, we should set an example, by being on time, following up on meetings. There are many communist and revolutionary organizations we will be working with, such as ATM, IWK, NAILM independent study circles, etc. As well as organizations such as RU, CL, OL... We should try to unite all those that can be united around the correct line short of the Party. Our work with ATM is particularly important, both on a local and national level. We need to talk with them about Party Building and conduct a correct summation of the LCC, as well as the development of practical work in the District. Work with ATM here is very important, since this is the largest area where BWC and ATM will work together, and what we do here will affect the pace of unity on a national level. This should be discussed in your unit and suggestions come back through the unit leader to the DC. Talks with IWK and BAIL are just beginning and there should be no gossip or rumors floated around. Criticism about these organizations should pass through the unit leader to the DC. Unity and struggle is the order of the day. Build a multi national communist party of a new type is our task.
